None to report.

II. OTHER ACTIVITIES

1. The two-week program for NPIC which we were scheduled to begin this morning has been postponed. [REDACTED] suggested the postponement because a majority of his students had been pulled out to work on one of NPIC's perennial flaps.

With reference to the CTP class, this was a group which had us all puzzled right up to the conclusion of the course. Many of its members never seemed really to take hold or dig in as seriously as we have come to expect of CTs.

They had to be reminded several times that they were expected to be here for a full day -- that reading periods were scheduled specifically for that purpose -- and that the various problems and exercises were not merely "fun and games." This is not to suggest that a serious problem emerged or that there were malcontents, but rather that they acted in less mature fashion than has normally been the case.

4. As far as we can judge the morning which [REDACTED] and I spent with the members of the new DIS Advanced Course seemed to go reasonably well. They were quite active, apparently interested, and except for one thoroughly obnoxious character, pleasant. We were reassured by many of the obnoxious type's classmates that he was not gunning for us specifically, that he was merely being consistent, and that had he not attacked us there would have been reason for suspicion.

5. [REDACTED] returned from his NIPA orientation at Williamsburg thoroughly overwhelmed by the skill of the Williamsburg Lodge in handling a conference and pleased with his Harvard NIPA colleagues. He did feel, however, that the Harvard NIPA advisor was rather casual in his approach to "advising," and gained the impression that he would be very much on his own in arranging a program.
